

Friday February 5 Noon to 1 pm (on Zoom)

HUMAN NATURE PLANET EARTH IN OUR TIME

How photography can lead to environmental engagement

Image © J Henry Fair

The new book Human Nature: Planet Earth in Our Time, Twelve Photographers Address the Future of the Environment asks questions. What do we have? What do we have to lose? What do we have to change? Three world-class photographers will join us to talk about their images, the stories behind them, and the role photography can play in communicating environmental problems and solutions.

Join from PC, Mac, Linux, iOS or Android: <https://yale.zoom.us/j/94944239109>

Or Telephone: 203.432.9666 (2-ZOOM if on-campus) or 646.568.7788

Meeting ID: 949 4423 9109

International numbers available: <https://yale.zoom.us/u/abru9CvcaM>

Image © Joel Sartore

Tim Laman is a contributing photographer for National Geographic magazine, and films for the BBC Natural History Unit and Cornell Lab of Ornithology. He is an Associate of Harvard University's Museum of Comparative Zoology.

Steve Winter has been a photographer for National Geographic for over two decades. He is a Nat Geo Explorer and he's been named BBC Wildlife Photographer of the Year and BBC Wildlife Photojournalist of the Year.

J Henry Fair uses pictures to tell stories about people and things that affect people. Based in NYC and Berlin, his recent book, Industrial Scars: The Hidden Costs of Consumption, published by Papadakis of London, is in its second edition.

Find the book at www.chroniclebooks.com/products/human-nature

Sponsored by the Yale Center for Environmental Communication

Yale SCHOOL OF THE ENVIRONMENT